FAR WEST VIEWS.

He Speaks Upon Agricultural and Economics.

ON THE GOLD BASIS
Mr. Pettigrew Has Some Strong Feelings.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—[Special.]—“Of course they will pass the tariff bill,” said Senator Pettigrew in the course of a lengthy conversation on the interests of his state as connected with legislation. “But they will not pass it as soon as they are promising. As a matter of course, the Democrats must pass some kind of a bill reducing the rates of the McKinley bill, but I feel pretty certain they will not get it into the hands of the conference committee before the second week in July anyhow. I think it quite possible that the last and accepted count is correct—that is, that all the Democrats will vote for it but one, and also Messrs. Kyle and Allen, but I don't believe Senator Caffery will. You must not take this as my prophecy, however, for I am not in the prophecy business. I only say it is the latest count, and I know of nothing to the contrary. It gives us a bad whack on corn barley, but otherwise we can stand it.”

South Dakota's Interests.

“Is there any other measure of prime importance to South Dakota—the canals, for instance?”

“No; we are not in the navigation line except for the Missouri river, and that stream does its own work without regard to Congress. The great scheme for a big canal to run up the Mississippi from Minneapolis and then eastward to Duluth is so utterly impractical that we simply laugh at it, and even if it could be made it would not concern us much. Neither would the Hennepin canal, for that matter, so much as some people imagine, and any guess as to whether they ever do perfect that sort of navigation it will be by enlarging the ditch they now have from Chicago down to the Illinois river. All that, however, is so far off that it doesn't interest us a thousandth part as much as the rate of duty on corn and barley. You see, it costs us 25 cents to ship corn to New York, and something like as much to ship it from Argentina.”

“It is all nonsense to say that a tariff couldn't make any difference in the price so long as we produce a surplus. In the first place, we do not really produce a surplus of corn in the United States. We grow an enormous amount, it is true, but the years ago the prophecy of such an amount would have been laughed at by farmers—but we work it all up some way, into meat or spirits or grain preparations, and population is increasing so rapidly that we shall very soon use it all. You must remember that the acreage which is growing corn is not one-tenth that suitable for wheat, taking the whole world, and I think you will find in the development of the west that corn and pork have been in the run of years the surest foundation of prosperity. In the second place, take notice that if we were raising only wheat corn for this nation's use, and the Atlantic cities and the lower gulf region could be supplied by free imports from South America, it would hurt us very seriously. You see, they would bring in just enough to keep our prices down all the time, and now that there is a chance of the farmer getting something out of the tariff it's a shame for us to lose it.”

Diversified Crops.

“But is not wheat your principal crop?”
“Oh, no, indeed! All that wonderful valley of southeastern Dakota now has a very diversified agriculture, and that is the reason why our farmers have not felt the depression much and have gained steadily all along through it. It really makes me see my eyes sometimes when I ride over to Yankton and see the contrast between the first time I went through there from Sioux Falls, when I got my first contract from Surveyor General Beadle. I made some money on that surveying job, too—pretty near the first I ever made—and it came in very handy. There was then and for quite awhile afterward only one house on the road, and it was such a ‘shack’ that I camped on the prairie rather than sleep in it. Now the whole region is as thickly settled as any farming district in Illinois, and one rides through a constant succession of corn and wheat and barley and flax, miles on miles of the richest and loveliest country in the world, where there are well to do farmers with good houses and barns, out of debt and with money to lend.”

“Last summer I visited my old camping place, where I used to camp and I heard the whole prairie whirling with the noise of birds, and where game was so plenty that one didn't have to go out of the road for it. From that spot I looked north and south 10 miles each way over an unbroken expanse of corn. Maybe there were breaks in it, but in look over the land you don't see them, and it is so through all the valley of the Vermilion, where only yesterday, as it seems, I chased elk and hunted antelopes. It's the richest valley in the world, and those Germans, Scandinavians and Yankees are just the people for it—a class of people you can depend on under all circumstances.”

“I must give you one case. After I got a start in the land business I used to attend to their papers for new settlers, and among them was a Mr. Addegarde, a Scandinavian, who had just $100 left after paying for his filing, and with that he started in on the raw prairie. He now has 3,500 acres of land, 1,500 cattle, about 1,000 sheep and 1,000 hogs and 10,000 bushels of old wheat in his granary. He owes no man a cent, and if you were to talk this stuff about ‘suffering farmers’ to him he would think you were a lunatic. Just the same he is holding onto an immense amount of wheat for a higher price. All through that country you will find the farmers prosperous and living in nice houses, and many of them have preserved the old sodhouses in which they first lived, using them for toolhouses, and it's delightful to see the contrast.”

“And has the gold basis hit you any?”

There was a transformation scene on a small scale. The phrase “gold basis” seemed to operate like the touch of the invisible prince's sword in the old pantomime. The senator at once grew very animated and proceeded to pitch into the president, the Democrats, the Republicans of the east, Wall street, New York, Boston, England and all creation generally east of the Chicago meridian. He proceeded to demonstrate that the great creditor nation, meaning England, of course, now has all the western world in a vise and is every year squeezing more blood out of it; that the true policy of the United States would be to cultivate trade with the silver nations who produce what we do not; that the eastern people are blind to the country's interest, besides being inconsistent, greedy, hypocritical and several other things; that the gold basis cannot be maintained without ruining millions of good people, and so forth, and so forth, but as he has said all this and ten times as much more, and very much more severe, in recent speeches it is not necessary to repeat it.

THE B. OF L. E. CONVENTION

Delegate Wm. Hamilton Tells About It—An Interesting Talk, With Figures.

Wm. H. Hamilton of the Santa Fe, who recently returned from the national convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers at Minneapolis, Minn., where he represented Topeka division No. 234, said to a JOURNAL reporter today:

“We had a good and profitable time there and were treated very nicely by both Minneapolis and St. Paul. We were in session twenty-two days, from the 9th to the 31st inclusive, and had two excursions. On Sunday, the 30th, we went to Duluth, and on the 22d were given a barbecue at Lake Harriet.”

There were 527 of us, one for each division in the country, representing a membership of about 29,000. Kansas has 21 divisions and a membership of about 1,100, and her delegation consisted of: Joseph Speck, Kansas City; Joseph Farley, Emporia; G. W. Vrooman, Ellis; F. F. Wiggins, Parsons; Edward Wall, Chanute and Wellington; J. W. Porter, Fort Scott; J. W. Waligan, Dodge City; H. S. Zimmer, Herrington; J. Collins, Neodesha; J. Noland, Ossawatimie; F. K. Clark, Horton and Hiawatha; A. W. Dobson, Eldorado; M. Hurley, Argentine; R. Meares, Newton and Arkansas City; L. C. Ames, Goodland, and J. J. Hockett, Holsington.

There was no radical legislation at the convention. Everything went off smoothly and nothing much was done outside of the routine business that argue little petty grievances that Kansas took no part in. The matter of the Lehigh and Ann Arbor strikes was explained satisfactorily to the convention.

“We have formed a regular insurance bureau and it has been incorporated under the laws of the state of Ohio, with headquarters at Cleveland and H. P. Hays has been made the secretary of insurance. At this convention $34,800 were allowed for charities in the brotherhood. At the first convention 29 years ago the allowance for charities was $3,000. You see we have been growing. A greater part of the money for this allowance comes from the sale of our official magazine, the B. of L. E. Journal published at Cleveland where our headquarters is.

“Our election was very satisfactory and the officers for the next two years will be as follows: Grand Chief, R. M. Arthur of Ohio; Assistant Grand Chief, A. W. Youngson of Pennsylvania; 1st Grand Engineer, T. S. Ingraham, of Ohio; 2nd Grand Engineer, Charles Salmons of Illinois.

“Our next meeting will not be held until May, 1895, at Ottawa, Canada.

“The Topeka division has about 75 members and the lodge is in a very flourishing condition. I am chief engineer, James Thomas is my first assistant and Wm. Manley is my second. John Hoveland is our local secretary of insurance.”

Washburn Recital.

Misses Adelaide Stick, Minnie Bishop, Blanche Bartley, Mellie Magee, Edna Pierce, Adele McElroy, Lida Goodrich, Mary Steinfort and Laura Weidling, and Paul Turrillings sang at the musical recital at Washburn college last evening, and Misses Trissa Greenwood, Susie Sweet, Ellen Pugh, Dora White and Helen R. Ingalls contributed well selected piano numbers. The chapel was well filled and the concert good.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except engredients which are exactly adapted to the purpose for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and do not be induced to accept a substitute.
